Ben Soon remembered when the principal went to his class. He said that every student in the class would take an English test. That was four weeks ago. Ben Soon had studied every night. He had gone to Mr Brown, his English teacher, whenever he was in doubt and needed help. Ben Soon wanted to do well. He did not want to stay in the special English class. He had only one problem - Joshua.

Joshua was a bully. There was no other word for him. He was taller and heavier than anyone else in the class. Joshua was not dumb but he did not like English class. He did not want to take time to study for the test. He did not worry about it because he had a foolproof plan.

Ben Soon felt helpless. Even if he told Mr Brown, Joshua would still get him. There did not seem much Ben Soon could do about his problem, except do what Joshua said. "Just make sure you sit next to me and make sure I can see your answer," Joshua said with a strange smile.

The test was conducted in the largest room of the school. All the students were there. Joshua made sure Ben Soon was next to him. Mr Brown handed out the tests and reminded the class to check their work carefully before handing in.

The test was long. Ben Soon took his time. He thought the test was hard. When he finished, he did not know how well he had done. Joshua found the test easy. He sat to the left of Ben Soon. Every answer Ben Soon checked, Joshua checked too. Ben Soon turned in his test first. Joshua stayed in his seat and pretended to check his answer.

A week later, all the tests were marked. Mr Brown praised Ben Soon and said that he had done very well. Then Mr Brown called Joshua. Joshua walked to the front of the class with that strange "see how smart I am" smile. "Well, you learned one thing," Mr Brown said, "the person sitting next to you took a different test. You only got two answers right."
